The Kenneth Kay Family

Kenneth Kay was born August 26, 1945, in San Diego, California, the third of three children born to Clyde E. and Rolline L. Mosbach Kay. Ken has two older sisters who still live in San Diego. His father was born in Vernal, Utah, and his mother was born in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Ken lived in Ramona and attended elementary, Jr. high and Senior high school in Ramona. After graduating from high school in 1963, he went into the army and spent the next two years in the far east. When he was released from the army in 1966, his rating was Sgt.

After he came home he and Anita continued seeing one another and he enrolled for a general education at Grossmont College in nearby La Mesa.

Anita L. Raybould was born Nov. 23, 1945, in Pratt, Kansas. Her parents, Grant E. and Dorothy Cole Raybould, lived in Pratt where he was stationed with the army. Grant Raybould was born in Salt Lake City, Utah. Dorothy was born in Bristol, Virginia, Jan. 4, 1921. While years later their daughter, Angie, was born on Oct. 16, 1974. of work and decided on the retail business. Upon further studies, they decided on auto parts.

Ken left college and joined the Highway Patrol and they moved to Sacramento shortly after Angie arrived. After leaving the Highway Patrol, Ken and Angie moved back to live in San Diego and Ken established himself in the construction business, this was an easy step to take as both his father and father-in-law were well established in this business, each in his own company.

Besides his construction business, Ken opened an independent draftsman office and did well in each business.

In April of 1973, Ken moved both business and his family to a small retirement community named Borrego Springs. Ken joined the L.D.S. Church, and he did well with his business in their new environment. Their third child, Matthew, was born on April 17, 1980, in Borrego Springs, Cal. Their last child, Cameron, was born in Borrego Springs, Jan. 4, 1981. While Anita asked Ken to talk with distributors who could place them in northern Utah. Napa had a good business offer with several towns from which to choose to live.

On June 1, 1984, Ken and Anita came to live in Heber City, Utah. They opened "Ken's Napa" Auto Parts, at 151 North Main. Ken runs a neat store, the area behind the front store is well ordered and well stocked. The office area is well proportioned with the placement of large desk spaces; Anita is secretary, Ken is manager and Frank Hallman, Anita's step-father, handles the ordering of parts. The oldest son, Jay, helps out in the store evenings and weekends. The clerks are cheerful and prompt in their work.

Ken and Anita sold their home in California and bought the "Corey Hanks" home on 4th West and 1st South in Heber. They hope to refinish the home

Wasatch Sports

Wasatch Drops One to

MT. PLEASANT—The Wasatch High School Wasps were unable to hold onto an early 14 point lead as they lost to the North Sanpete Hawks, in a tough contest played Friday night in Mt. Pleasant.

Wasatch's running backs, Tony Kelly and Paul Sweat were unstoppable in the first half of play, as the offensive line opened holes to let the backs run for long gains. Paul Sweat ran 51 yards in the first quarter to set up the first Wasatch touchdown. Sweat ran 2-yards to set up the Wasps lead. The PAT kick by Martin Horne was off to the right.

The Wasatch defense then came into play as they stopped the Hawks offense, and caused a fumble deep in the Hawks own territory. This recovery made the next touchdown possible as Tony Kelly carried the ball across from 3 yards. Shawn Kelly then carried the ball across for a two-point conversion, giving the

This was followed by a short-pass to Wayne Cummings and the Wasps were inside the Hawks territory.

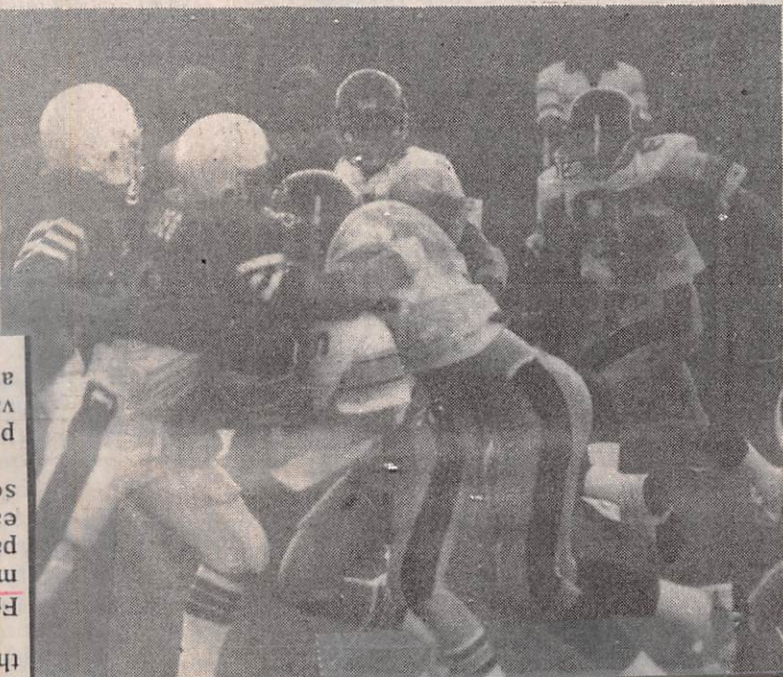

But, the momentum had turned, and the Wasps line let down and allowed Casper to get sacked, and on the next play, Scott Cook intercepted a pass, giving the Hawks the ball on the 20 yard line.

Wilkey's throwing kept the Hawks on the move as he combined with all receivers to move within scoring distance.

Wilkey then hit Scott Cook with a short pass, whose defender slipped, pushed his way into the end zone for a touchdown. The Hawks tried a 2-point conversion and were again stopped.

The Wasps couldn't move the ball, and with the final minutes of the game ticking off, the Hawks had moved within scoring range. The game ended with the Hawks defeating the Wasps 19-14.
